

prior to directing said light path to a front side thereof and toward the light guide to obtain high focusing of the light beam, wherein the path of said light beam is directed through a substantially non-solid medium, prior to being directed toward said light guide.

---